- Under 35
- Global Representation
- Ready for anything? – YES!

The Nautical Institute – A brief introduction

'It's like an international family that I have. We inspire each other. It's constantly giving back to the maritime community; teaching, mentoring, writing books, research.'

Capt. Alexandra Hagerty FNI - USA

'It's a big seafaring community, shipping community, helping each other build their careers. It's interacting with people of all ages, sharing knowledge and experiences with likeminded people.'

Capt. Sajith Babu FNI – India

The Nautical Institute – A brief introduction

A global not-for-profit professional membership organisation and a leading authority in the maritime industry.

Dedicated to promoting the highest standards of professionalism, competence and safety in the industry by providing training courses, professional development opportunities, publications and accreditations.

OUR MISSION

To Inspire the leaders of the future in the maritime industry

To enable better decision-making by working together, sharing ideas and best practice

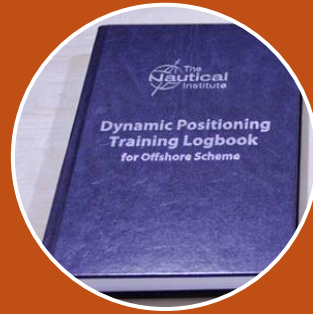

Provide a safer, environmentally sound and sustainable maritime industry

Article 1a

.....and to encourage the general adoption of the highest practicable standards in matters concerning maritime safety and efficiency of navigation

STCW Review – An opportunity!

- To modernise the Standard
- To address the wider skills required
- To remove outdated content
- Focus on personal skills

STCW Review – A reminder

- To protect that which is good
- To understand the importance of experience
- Resolve the ambiguity of emerging hazards racing ahead of the training systems required to address them

STCW Review – A Focus

Article 1a

.....and to encourage the general adoption of the highest practicable standards in matters concerning maritime safety and efficiency of navigation

- Knowledge is not competence
- Competence – like any learning takes time
- Better competence leads to safer ships
- Expediency is not the same as efficiency
